

South Jersey Animal Advocates (SJAA)

Chapter of the Unitarian Universalist Animal Ministry (UUAM)
In Affiliation with the Unitarian Universalist Congregation of the South Jersey Shore
(UUCSJS)

SJAA's PURPOSE/GOALS: To move beyond the celebration of the "interdependent web of existence" into practices in our everyday personal, social, economic and political lives that affirm species interdependence.

Welcome!! We've only just begun.....

The South Jersey Animal Advocates (SJAA) is a group of animal compassionate people dedicated to animal welfare and protection. We are a collective voice and force committed to end animal abuse and suffering by turning this animal compassion into action.

Animal cruelty comes in many forms: domestic pet abuse; trophy hunting; abusive factory farming practices; habitat infringement ; exploitation of wild animals; and animal experimentation; to name a few. Our aim is to identify these issues and become advocates in opposing them by public education and outreach; legislation; support of existing animal welfare groups; but mostly by committing our time and resources to act and advocate on animals' behalf.

Although affiliated with the UUCSJS, we are a non-denominational/non-discriminatory, group. We welcome and strongly encourage membership from both within and outside the UUCSJS to work within our community, region, and state. Our voices are much more powerful together than singly. Please join us in making this commitment to animal care and awareness.

If interested in joining, or if you want more information, please e:mail Cynthia Grzywinski at cynthiagrzy@comcast.net. Or call 609-742-1311.
